

Two premier construction industry contractors join forces under L&S Mechanical to provide plumbing, electrical, heating & air conditioning services.

Over the last twenty five years, L&S Plumbing and Frye Electric have come to be known as the premier providers of new home construction services in the plumbing and electrical industries.

L&S Plumbing began as a Dallas-based contractor in 1985 and has grown over the years to have operations in Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, San Antonio, Oklahoma City, Charlotte and Columbia, South Carolina. Over the years L&S has delivered over 50,000 homes and is currently the nation's largest single-family plumbing contractor.

Frye Electric opened its operation in 1967, focusing on the Charlotte market and then expanding into Columbia, South Carolina. Frye joined L&S in 2010 allowing us to offer both plumbing and electrical services from one location.

Our customers value partners who do quality work and make it easy to work with them. That is why we are excited to announce a change in our business that will further these goals. L&S Plumbing and Frye Electric will now collaborate together and we will be doing business as L&S Mechanical. In addition to single-family L&S provides services to light commercial projects.

The people you have worked with, the quality, and the service our customers have come to expect remain the same, but now we are making it even easier to get things done.

Our goal is simple – we want to be the one source our customers can always depend on for quality plumbing, electrical, and heating & air conditioning services. And, like always, when you work with any of our three companies, you can depend on us for:

- An industry-leading, customized estimating process
- Competitive programming
- National brand relationships
- 24-hour emergency protection from in-house dispatched service
- 6-day customer service and warranty scheduling
